

Wallace indicates "victory" in the 1964 Indiana Democratic presidential primary.

GEORGE C. WALLACE

The son of a Clio, Alabama, dirt farmer, George Corley Wallace, born on May 25, 1919, learned early the value of money and the meaning of work. To help his family during Depression years, he picked berries and sold magazines.

By age fifteen, he was a page in the Alabama State Senate and traveled the state on one-night boxing tours. In 1936 and 1937, he won the Southern Golden Gloves bantamweight championship.

At the University of Alabama, Wallace worked at odd jobs to put himself through law school. He graduated at 23 and immediately enlisted in the U.S. Air Corps. An attack of spinal meningitis ended his piloting hope and he became a B-29 flight engineer, serving combat missions over the Pacific.

During May, 1943, he married a department store clerk named Lurleen Burns.

After the war Wallace returned to Alabama and became assistant attorney general. One year later, at 27, he was elected to the Alabama House of Representatives and served two terms. During these years, he was campaign manager to then-current governor Jim Folsom and a delegate to the Democratic National Convention which saw a Dixiecrat walkout Wallace did not join.

Against strong opposition in 1953, he was elected to the State District Court Third Judicial District judgeship.

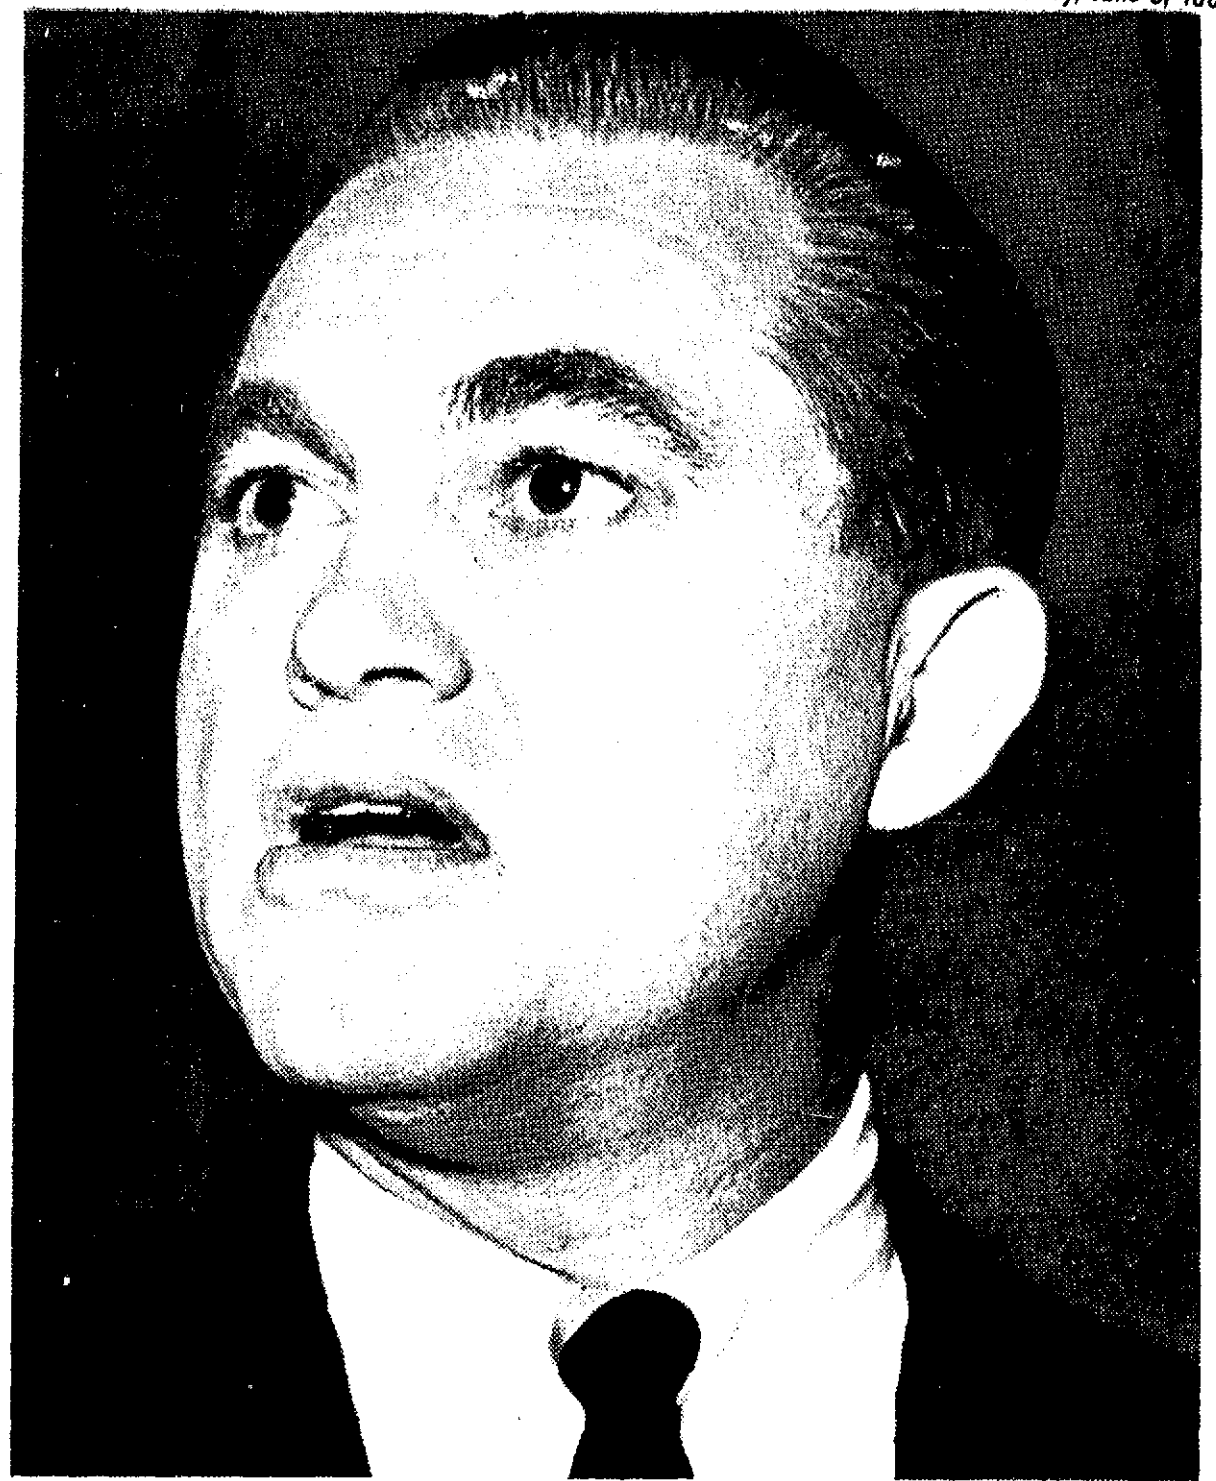

He placed second in a field of 14 in the 1958 Governor's race in the primary and lost the general election. Four years later, he came back to win by the biggest vote a gubernatorial candidate had received in State history.

In 1963, Wallace made his "stand in the schoolhouse door" at the University of Alabama, allowing the registration of Negro students only after Federalization of the State National Guard.

He entered three Presidential primaries in 1964 and scored impressively before withdrawing in unspoken favor of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Unable to obtain legislation removing the one-term limit to his office, Wallace ran his wife for Governor in 1966 and was instrumental in her victory.

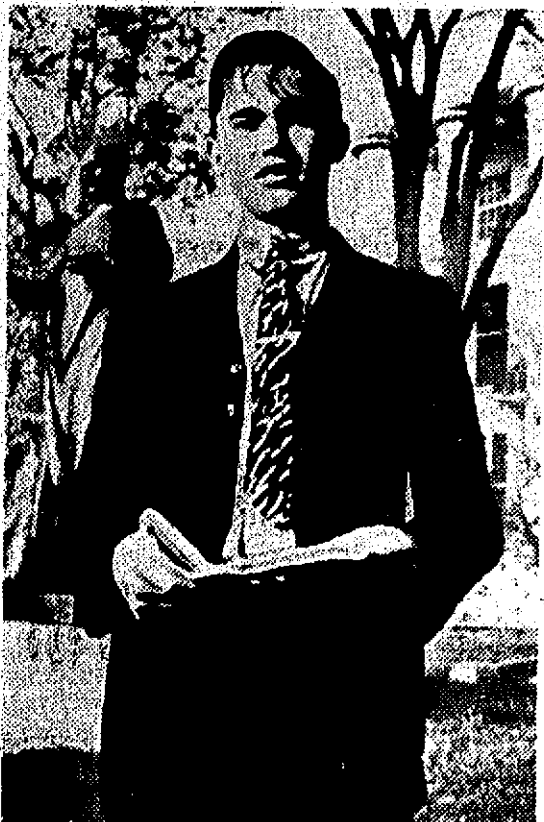

On May 7, 1968, when his wife died after a two year bout with cancer, the political future of George Wallace and his American Independence Party was altered in their attempt to gain a place on the 1968 presidential balloting throughout the country.

Making his "school door" stand, Wallace directs remarks to deputy Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach at Tuscaloosa in 1963.

During a 1967 speaking tour, Wallace enters his car amidst signs and slogans.

At age 15, he was a State Senate page.

With wife Lurleen and their first child at Alamogordo, N.M., during WW II.

On the bench as Circuit Judge, 1953-1959.

Practicing skeet shooting with Georgia Gov. Carl Sanders in 1963.

With his vice-presidential running mate, former Georgia Gov. Marvin Griffin, in early Feb., 1968.

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

MONKEY JUSTICE: Anthropologists studying monkey tribes believe their "societies" produce more "successful adults" than does human culture. "The males grow up to be tribal leaders and the females become mothers and rearers of children." The monkeys are far less permissive with their children than are humans. They are punished without fail when they deviate from adult behavior preference. Dr. Margaret Harlow of the University of Wisconsin says, "The monkeys learn much more uniformly to socialize aggression, that is, to put aggression in acceptable forms. Emotions develop in a pattern created by evolution to best insure survival of the species." In order, emotions develop as follows: (1) affection, (2) fear, (3) aggression. We wonder if some of the student protest people aren't retarded who missed 1 and 2!

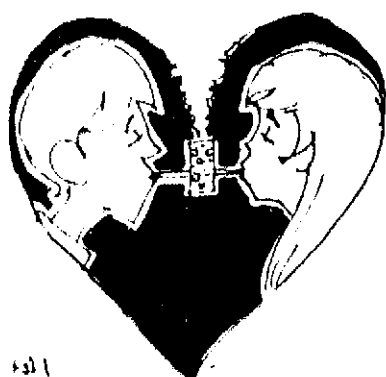

Canadian Teens Go Pow! Canadian teens have thrown a real monkey wrench into their politics. Alberta Liberal Party sets voting age for primaries at 16 years. Before emergence of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, few took advantage of the privilege. Upsets in the Liberal Party primary in Calgary area have been directly attributed to teens. Typical tactic: hundreds of teens are rehearsed, almost choreographed, by professionals and semiprofessionals, such as theatrical directors and headmasters. The young zealots take over meetings with disruptive chants and wild demonstrations. They whip up a frenzy of enthusiasm that carries over for weeks and leads to "recruitment" of all of their friends. The result has been a disruption of the plans for favorite sons of the established party. The eager beavers won't be able to vote on June 25 (neither will 25 million American teens in November).

ALCOHOL VS. POT—MORE OF THE SAME: Dr. Richard Moy, University of Chicago Director of Health Services, has interesting views on the "alcohol is worse than" approach to marijuana. Says: "If we have five million alcoholics, we don't need another five million marijuana addicts. If someone will guarantee that all the juice heads will turn potheads, that might be a negotiable situation." Dr. Moy also discusses LSD problems with considerable objectivity. The "depersonalization" that accompanies "bad trips" causes loss of distinction between self and nonself. A following stage is "depression." It is at this point that the individual is close to a choice between mysticism and madness.

JOBS ABROAD: Over 1,000 17-year-old-and-over students had jobs in Belgium last year. In 1968-69, the total will reach over 4,000 guaranteed jobs in a half-dozen different countries. Factory work, construction, farming, child care, hospital work and restaurants are among the job openings being advertised by International Society for Training and Culture (I.S.T.C.), 866 United Nations Plaza, New York, New York 10017.

Tandem-Corncob: Canadian teens are big with two-stem corncob pipe action. It's called "two can smoke as cheaply as one." Originated as a promotion gimmick, but teens grabbed the idea and now a Quebec factory is working around the clock to fill the orders for "togetherness pipes." Company plans a series of "colors" to add class. Cobbley-gook: Corn-cob pipes have a North American origin. Specially grown cobs are used. Not more than two pipes can be made from each cob. Usually cured for two years or more. Next—clay pipes for three?

TRIVIA TO PONDER: Among car buffs who really know what's shaking, guess what car is top on the list of used "in-cars"? The '57 Chevy Bel-Air hardtop—come to think of it, they are all over the place.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us! it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

LOYALTY CHECK BACKFIRES
Dear Helen: I'm mizzable! I had a good, true boyfriend, and I'd still have him, except I wanted to be SURE, so I tested him—and lost him.

My girl friend says that any guy will step out on his steady, if he's given the chance. I bet her $5.00 mine wouldn't—and I was so sure of him, I even pushed him toward her, acted like I wasn't that interested any more and told him I'd get him a date with her.

Well, he took me up on it—and ever since, he's been going with her, while I stay home and cry.

He won't even speak to me. And my girlfriend has the gall to tell me I owe her five dollars!—WHAT TO DO?

Dear What: Some friend! She cons you into helping her steal YOUR boyfriend—and then demands pay for it!

Why don't you tell her you'll send the pay-off by way of your mutual guy—with a letter of explanation?—H.

P.S. Don't blame the boy. My L.G.A.P. says he won't speak because he thinks you dumped him—and guess who gave him THAT idea?—H.

Dear Helen: I would like to make a public announcement to all boys who read this column. We girls are sick and tired of dropping hints to you guys that we DON'T like the kind of kissing you think really gets a girl—I mean St. Bernard type, which you evidently think is Robert Wagner type.

All the girls I know hate sloppy kisses. Please listen to us!—GIRLS OF AMERICA

Dear Helen: I'm engaged to a wonderful guy. He's working his way through college and is in his second year. His ambition has always been to be a doctor, and he has the brains for it. He maintains an A-B average, though he works almost full time.

But now he has an offer of a good-pay job as a salesman. He wants to quit college and marry me. He says the wait is too long, and he's tired of grubbing along on nothing. He won't consider getting married when he can't support me, though I know I could work, and together we'd make it.

How can I make him see how wrong he is?—ENGAGED

Dear Engaged: Your fiancé has the "second year at college blues." They hit almost every student whose financial and emotional problems are rough. He's tired, discouraged, impatient, and he thinks a "good job" would solve everything.

Believe me, it won't—not for a young man who might have been a doctor. He'll regret his cop-out the rest of his life.

Why not suggest a compromise? Ask him to hang on through one more semester, after the summer break. Get him to discuss his ambitions and worries with his doctor and the college counselor. I think between the three of you, some sort of plan for marriage plus college can be worked out And I'm quite sure that if you pull him through these next six months, you'll have a doctor for a husband. Good luck!—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble, or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star. Copyright, 1967, Inc.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Baby Teeth Oddities Create Some Problems
By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

Michael 8, has a double row of teeth. His two lower front permanent teeth are growing in behind the baby teeth.

This is not unusual and it's often resolved simply by waiting until the baby teeth loosen and fall out. But Michael's baby teeth are so firm in his jaw they won't fall out.

A double row of teeth is a nuisance, and more. It makes biting and chewing difficult, and creates a pocket for food to collect. It can also cause permanent teeth to grow in crooked.

Therefore, while it's unpleasant for young children to be subjected to tooth pulling, in this case it was necessary to remove the baby teeth.

Helen, 12, has an overjet. This means that her upper jaw and teeth stick out. It's hard to tell in these cases whether the upper jaw is overdeveloped or the lower is underdeveloped.

It's rather cute and gives Helen a kind of pert, feminine look. But her mother can't stand it. She wants Helen's teeth "moved back where they belong", even though the back teeth come together in a fairly good bite.

The orthodontist decided that the easiest way to move the front teeth back was to extract one premolar tooth from each side of the jaw to make the necessary room. This is often the treatment of choice because it can shorten time of orthodontic treatment.

Gordon, 10, has two lower baby molars that have large cavities. Of course, baby teeth should be preserved as long as needed in order to maintain healthy chewing apparatus and to keep space in the jaw for natural eruption of permanent teeth.

But since Gordon is about to lose these teeth and since they are so badly decayed, decision was made to extract them.

Daniel, 12, has a baby molar that's "as solid as a rock," as he likes to say. All his other baby teeth are out, pushed out by permanent ones.

His dentist wisely X-rayed the area and found that the permanent tooth that was supposed to be under it was missing.

The baby tooth was left in place, hopefully to serve as a permanent one for many adult years.

The Longest Auto Race

Sixty years ago, when any trip in a horseless carriage was an adventure, George Schuster and Montague Roberts embarked on the greatest auto trek of them all—a 22,000-mile race from New York to Paris. Schuster, now 95 and living in upstate New York, has written a book about his experiences as mechanic on the winning vehicle, an American-made Thomas Flyer. Five other open racing machines engaged in the contest which followed a course westward across the United States, across the Pacific by ship to Japan, and then on to Siberia, Russia and the European continent. These old photos show the Thomas Flyer and some of the rigors it faced in winning the longest auto race.

First tire repair in a snowstorm near Buffalo, N.Y.

Crossing a Russian river with help of added horsepower.

More repairs in Germany where dog carts were more common sight than autos.

Slump: 'What? Me Worry??'

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer
NEW YORK—(NEA)—Red of hair, green of eye, ivory of smile, freckled of face and possibly the longest two-syllable last name in sports, Albert (Red) Schoendienst is a cross between Van Johnson, Alfred E. Neuman and the sparkling kid in the old 7-Up ads. He always appears relaxed. But beneath that calm exterior beats a calm interior.
Schoendienst, 45 is manager of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals. Some observers consider his work cushiony, if not a sinecure. But the Cardinals, as most of the other 19 major league clubs, have been, according to Schoendienst, "in a little hitting slump all season."

Is this cause for worry? "What," replied Schoendienst, near the batting cage before a night game, "after 23 years in the big leagues, worry about something like that? No. Things will even out soon."
Despite hitting inadequacies, the Cardinals have been near or at the top of the National League standings all season.
There has been concern in some areas that the flood of low-scoring games in the major leagues is due to the growing superiority of pitchers over hitters. Schoendienst eschews this theory. He hangs the blame on the falling climate.
"It's been wet almost everywhere we played," he said. "As soon as the weather warms, the ball will get lighter, the infields and outfields will be faster, the air will be drier and a lot more runs will be scored. We're already starting to hit the ball well. Now we have to wait for them to start falling in and going through."

For Schoendienst, no shocks have yet occurred in the pennant race. "I knew it would be tight," he said. "All 10 teams have a chance. Take a team like Pittsburgh. They've been in last place for awhile, but only a handful of games out of first. Everyone knows they're strong, and everyone's wary of them."
The Mets can't be counted out either. They've got one of the best young pitching staffs in baseball.
"Houston will surprise a lot of people. I said that before the season and I still think it's true."
And what about the Cardinals? "We've got problems," he said. "But who doesn't? It's nothing to get ulcers over. Look, my hair's still red. No gray. And no reason for it

Howard's Goal: .300

The beefs of the suddenly affluent pro footballers range far these days. Now they're not happy about a committee of writers voting for the Outstanding Blocker of the Year. This year it was Green Bay's Jerry Palmer... especially since one member persists in casting his annual ballot for Dallas defensive tackle Bob Lilly, who hasn't blocked anybody since he got stuck in a revolving door.

The change-over in golf is emphasized by such recent obscure luminaries as Bobby Lunn, B. R. McClelland, Monte Kaser, Paul Bondeson—who don't fly their own jets from tournament to tournament but have been finishing ahead of those who do...

The hippie influence hasn't taken over completely yet. Both major leagues are being led in battling by a pair of crewcuts, Frank Howard and Pete Rose.

Rose's philosophy of hitting is simple. "I've got four hits so far," he told one catcher as he went up to bat, "but as far as I'm concerned, I still haven't got a hit today."... Howard's ambition is simple: "I just want to hit .300 once." He missed out twice at .296 when he was with the Los Angeles Dodgers—one year he hurt his arm and went 0-for-7 as a pinch-hitter the last week of the season because he couldn't swing a bat; the next year he was over .300 after the final week, but the Dodgers were involved in a championship play-off, and Frank Howard went 1-for-11...

The family of Senator catcher Paul Casanova is still in Cuba. Last Christmas, he bought $1,000 worth of presents and shipped them all to Castroland. The boxes came back to him unopened not long ago...

Outfielder Alex Johnson of the Reds is known to his mates as Mr. Personality. His favorite form of communication is a grunt. This spring, he unloaded and made a speech. "I don't want to beat out any of my teammates for a job," he orated. "I just want to play ball." Figure out that non sequitur... But all major leaguers are intrigued by his talent. Gene Mauch, who had him first at Philly, claims Johnson is the fastest right-hand batter in the league going down to first base...

On sports semantics, commissioner Pete Rozelle brought a new word into the lexicon. He ducks the no-comment business when asked a sensitive question, but the football czar prefaces his answer by saying it's "nonattributable"...

Feeling around the auto racing beat is that Andy Granatelli, the "bridesmaid" of Indianapolis, may have outsmarted himself this year. His turbines, like a year ago, faltered with a few miles to go. The mystery of the conk-out could be traced to the fact that instead of using kerosene, the recommended fuel for a turbine, Andy poured in gasoline because of a commercial tie-in...

Think baseball isn't better than ever? Cincy skipper Dave Bristol points out, "When I came into the game, no one told me that with no outs and a man on second, you're supposed to push the first pitch to right field. Now every little league kid knows it..."

Between you'n'me, the regular lineup of the Detroit Tigers has a rare distinction. Every man who takes the field is an original product of the Tiger organization, and that includes such starting pitchers as Joe Sparma and Mickey Lolich...

Swoboda Optimistic, But Mets Still Stumble

By IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The Mets are on the verge of bursting out with the last laugh in the National League. The belly-laugh is welling and rumbling upward. But there still seems to be a hand clapped over their collective mouths.

The team that has rivaled Bob Hope, the Ringling Brothers circus and our foreign policy as the most fanciful thing around, has been playing the best ball in its six-year history. Yet the Mets are several giant steps away from first place, and, as in the past, have one foot in the cellar.

"We've been in every game this year," said Ron Swoboda, the Mets' 23-year-old slugging right fielder. "This has given us a whole new, positive outlook on life. Before, we might go four, five games without even the foggiest chance of winning."

Despite what some call the best young pitching staff in the league and the bulging averages of Jerry Grote, Greg Gossens, Art Shamsky, Swoboda and Ken Boswell, among others, the Mets are still the Mets in the standings.

"It's not discouraging in the least," said Swoboda. "In fact, it's absolutely encouraging. We all know it's just a matter of time—a short time—before we make a big move up."

Swoboda, said Met manager Gil Hodges, symbolizes the kind of concentration and dedication he expects from his youthful club.

"I think a big difference this year," said Swoboda, "is that the club has finally decided to go with youth. Before, they hoped that a couple veterans would do well for a season or two. Now, they're letting some of the young players learn while playing.

"It hurts sometimes. Now it seems to hurt almost every time we lose. Almost every game we've dropped this year was due to some kind of bonehead play by an inexperienced player. I include myself, too. For example, a couple games ago there was a hit-and-run play by the other team. I fielded the ball and the batter tried for second. I threw there on impulse to get him. He was safe and the first runner scored, too. I should've thrown home."

"I've been with the club four seasons now, and I don't do those things too often any more. When I first came up I think I made every mistake in the book three times, and all seemed to come in critical spots. But we're all still learning. It takes a while. Look at commercial airplane pilots, for example. They have to train for some 15 years before they ever get into the pilot's seat."

Experience, though, is paying off. And in Swoboda's case, handsomely. He was the early home-run leader in the league and was pounding the ball with regularity.

"I feel strong. I'm stroking the ball well and I'm concentrating better than ever," he said. "It's deeply satisfying, but I haven't gone all the deep end. I know that I have not yet achieved anything like the Aarons, Mayeses, Torres, McCoveys. I can't even think of myself in the same breath with them."

"What's so satisfying for me is that I have to work so hard to get results. I'm not a graceful or natural player. Baseball just doesn't come easy for me, like it must for the big stars. Any time I start feeling complacent I get in trouble."

"That happened this spring. I had my best year in the majors in 1967, batting .281. Although I kept in good shape over the winter, I just wasn't hungry when spring training came. At the plate, I had trouble concentrating and as a result was doing rather lousy."

"Then something happened. I walked instead of ran to right field after ending an inning. Hodges called me over and said, 'You're dragging.' I said, 'Well, I feel terrible because I'm not hitting.' He said, 'Look here. Anyone can go bad. The best have done it. But they come out of it. So will you. Don't let yourself fall apart if you're not hitting. It not only hurts you, it hurts the whole club. You're attitude could catch on like a disease.'"

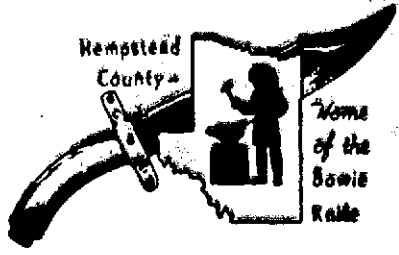

"For me, that changed everything. Right off the bat. Hodges and I had an understanding. It's beautiful. The entire club has this understanding. It makes life a lot more pleasant."

Why Not Give Youngsters' Idea A Try

The idea of having young people in their teens serving on some local government committees and commissions is a good one. In a talk to 1,500 Atherton High School students, Lacey T. Smith, director of the Kentucky Youth Conference, urged local officials to tap young people for this kind of service. He also challenged the students to make available to the community "their insights, energies and imaginations."

Mr. Smith said that he was asking young people to become interested in seeking representation on government organizations not only because of the great benefit they and their classmates would get out of serving but because of the great benefit their "ideas can be to our community."

Certainly his proposal is worth a try. The views of the young could be particularly helpful to recreation agencies and on police advisory groups. It also might break down preconceptions on both sides of the generation gap. — Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal and Times

Crunching To A Halt

California, the avant-garde state, is leading the nation once again. This time it is having what must be first potato chip strike.

Well, maybe that's stretching the facts just a bit. What has happened is that striking Teamsters in Northern California have just about closed down four major producers of potato chips and similar snack foods. This has created a minor crisis in the social life at the top half of the state whose residents, famous for endless cocktail parties, normally consume $5 million in snack foods every month. That's a lot of potato chips, but don't forget that these are the people who originated "California dip."

In desperation the hosts and hostesses of Northern California have had to import their potato chips from — ugh! — Los Angeles. But snacks can get stale over the long journey, and no one knows how long the strike may last, so a lot of Californians will simply have to ration their potato chips. Bet you can't eat just one! Hah! That all you'll get. — Greensboro (N.C.) Daily News

Charles Daley Quits Voice of America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former television personality John Charles Daley has quit as head of the Voice of America, accusing his boss of "executive undercutting" and "maladministration" in the transfer of a Daley aide.

Daley submitted his resignation Thursday, effective immediately, to Leonard Marks, director of the United States Information Agency. He complained that Marks' office transferred one of his VOA aides while Daley was abroad.

Marks promptly accepted the resignation. He sent Daley a letter praising his one-year record as chief of the U.S. government overseas radio.

The 54-year-old Daley, a broadcast journalist, moderator of the former TV panel show, "What's My Line?", and son-in-law of Chief Justice Earl Warren, was appointed to the VOA post by President Johnson May 29, 1967.

Marks, a communications lawyer and friend of the President, runs USIA, which handles government propaganda abroad and is the parent agency of the VOA. The VOA, with an annual budget of $34 million, operates 101 transmitters around the world and beams programs in 36 languages.

Daley said he has not shaped his plans after leaving his $24,500-a-year government position. His deputy, USIA career officer Richard G. Cushing, is slated to be acting VOA director.

The Daley-Marks row apparently flared after Daley returned from a globe-circling trip a month ago to find one of his senior officials, Leonard Reed, chief of the VOA's World Wide English Division, under orders to transfer to the USIA press and publications service.

Two Contracts Cited by Joe Purcell

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell said Thursday that the language in two state printing contracts is ambiguous and that the two state stationery supply contracts should be rewritten or tested in the courts.

"This office is not a court of law and therefore it is impossible for us to judicially determine what exactly happened in the letting of these contracts," Purcell said in an opinion.

The two contracts have caused a difference of opinion between state Auditor Jimmie "Red" Jones and the state Printing Specifications Review Committee.

The contracts involved are a general stationery and office supply contract to Parkin Printing and Stationery Co. of Little Rock and one for carbon paper and typewriter ribbons that went to the Columbia Carbon Paper Co. of Blytheville.

Jones had contended the Columbia provided only materials listed in their contract and that otherwise Parkin provided the articles.

A Day Camp for the Handicapped Will Be Held Here Next Week

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

A Day Camp for the Handicapped will be held in Hope for the first time next week, June 10-14, at Fair Park. The camp will be for the crippled and the retarded ranging from the chronological age of 5 years. In recent years it has been realized that the handicapped should be given as much normal activity as they are capable of. We hear a lot about hiring the handicapped, which can prove beneficial to both employer and employee, so why not let them have a taste of summer fun which only camping can provide!

Because of the limited strength of the participants, the special camp will last only 3½ hours, beginning at 9 a.m. and concluding at 12:30 p.m. Mrs. Haskell Jones, director, will be ably assisted by Mrs. Harry Tridle, who has had experience in working with the handicapped in her native Kansas.

Local organizations which will assist in directing games and crafts and in serving a light lunch at noon are the Boy Scouts, Hope Junior Auxiliary, and the Newcomers Club. Charles Gough, Hope Parks and Recreation Director, will supervise the swimming activity.

A flag raising ceremony will be held each morning at 9 a.m. at the Fair Park main entrance gate. To carry out the Indian Days theme of the camp, those attending will be divided into "tribes" the first day and each will choose a "chief."

The divisions or classes and their leaders will be: Arts and Handicrafts, Mrs. Earl Whitaker; Music Appreciation, Mrs. Helen Hatch and Mrs. C. B. Grady; Exercise and Calisthenics, Mrs. E. L. Archer, Jr.; Story Telling and Play Acting, Mrs. W. C. Bruner, Jr.; Nature Study, Mrs. Charles Stone and Mrs. Lonnie Crow.

On Friday the Boy Scouts will have an Indian Day complete with a teepee set-up, tribal dances, and a bonfire. There will even be a peace pipe on which to blow out talcum powder instead of smoke. Awards will be presented to the campers, also, to complete the week on Friday.

An invitation is given to anyone in Hempstead County desiring to participate, but parents are encouraged to let their children take part in the camping activities by themselves. They will not be alone, and the good and capable supervision will include an available doctor.

Fragments Were Still in the Brain

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It may be days or weeks before the full medical story of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination is told, but one fact apparently has been established: Death was due to a bullet in the brain.

The coroner's chief medical examiner said Thursday after a six-hour autopsy: "The cause of death was ascribed by me as gunshot wound of the right mastoid penetrating the brain."

Dr. Thomas T. Noguchi told newsmen that pieces of the bullet and the mastoid bone behind the right ear "severely damaged the main portion of the right side of the brain and reached about the center of the brain."

He said the damage was so extensive "it could not help but cause death" but he would not speculate on reports the senator was partly paralyzed during the 25 hours he clung to life after the shooting Wednesday.

Noguchi said routine tests of brain tissue and vital organs removed during the autopsy would continue for days or even weeks but he was confident they would not change his decision on the cause of death.

"Quite a few fragments of the bullet were still in the brain," Noguchi said. Surgeons who operated on Kennedy shortly after the shooting reported they had obtained all but one fragment.

"It is remarkable that the attending physicians were able to remove as many fragments as they did," Noguchi said.

An indication of the force of the 22-caliber bullet, fired at close range, was seen in X rays showing fragments in the cerebrum, the forefront of the brain which is the seat of thought processes. The pathologist said further study would be needed to determine whether the fragments were bits of bone or bullet.

Damage earlier had been reported confined to the cerebellum, the rear section of the brain, and the brain stem connecting with the spinal cord. Noguchi said the major damage was in these areas, with an artery supplying the cerebellum severed.

A second bullet, not a cause of death, was found in the back of the neck just beneath the skin. Noguchi said the bullet entered the right armpit and coursed upward.

The pathologist declined to speculate on whether Kennedy's arm was raised or which bullet was fired first.

Noguchi said a more extensive summary would be made in a few days and a full official report would be prepared after further tests and evaluation.

Fresh Troops Sent in by Viet Cong

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Sporadic fighting, possibly involving fresh Viet Cong troops, flared again today in the Chinese section of Saigon and the enemy hit the capital with a rocket and mortar attack for the fifth straight day.

South Vietnamese combat police said they killed the deputy commander of the Viet Cong battalion which government troops have been trying for eight days to root out of Cholon, the Chinese district 2.5 miles from the heart of Saigon.

The enemy battalion commander was reported killed earlier in the week and at one point, government military spokesmen said the enemy had been crushed in Cholon and apparently was withdrawing.

But the guerrillas, holed up in buildings, popped up again and reports from Cholon today said about 30 Viet Cong were fighting police in a residential area two blocks from a Roman Catholic church. Government tanks again were blasting guerrilla firing positions.

The new fighting suggested that fresh Viet Cong troops may be surfacing. The Cholon area is reported infested with cells of Viet Cong being held in reserve.

In central Saigon, two gunmen on a motorbike, believed to be Viet Cong assassins, killed a South Vietnamese army lieutenant today half a block from the house of U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. They escaped.

The latest enemy shelling—25 rocket and mortar rounds—hit the dock area, central Saigon and a residential area just northwest of the capital. Initial reports listed two Vietnamese civilians and a policeman killed and 12 civilians wounded.

One round today landed near Grall Hospital, Saigon's leading hospital, but caused no new casualties. Two senior Vietnamese officials, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, chief of the national police and Col. Van Van Cua, mayor of Saigon, are in Grall Hospital recovering from wounds from street fighting in Saigon.

Meanwhile, the government radio announced that Loan and Cua have been replaced.

Loan was replaced as head of the 70,000-man police force by Col. Tran Van Hai, commander of South Vietnam's ranger combat troops.

Racing Track Stockholders End Dispute

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP) — Officers of the Southland Racing Corp., which operates a greyhound track at West Memphis, announced today that a stockholders dispute had been settled and that they hoped for prompt approval of a racing season to begin June 21.

The state Racing Commission is to meet Saturday afternoon at Little Rock to consider Southland's application for a 102-day racing season beginning June 21.

Officers announced a reorganization of the corporation that includes the elevation of Richard Upton, assistant general manager and public relations man for the track, to president and general manager. Upton, who will serve as chief executive officer with full responsibilities for the corporation, succeeds J. W. Rasico, who resigned and plans to move to Daytona Beach, Fla., according to Southland's announcement.

Southland's Board of Directors named Aubrey Spear, who was the vice president, as first vice president.

Harry Latourette of Jonesboro will be a vice president and secretary and Fred Bolinger of West Memphis was named a vice president.

Jeremy Jacobs of Williamsville, N. Y., will serve as treasurer.

Alston Jennings of Little Rock and Rasico resigned from the board of directors, according to Southland's announcement.

Jacobs is an officer of High Park Corp., which owns a majority interest in Southland.

Somehow, It All Seemed the Same

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a different time. A different place. A different woman. A different coffin. Yet, somehow, it seemed all the same. Another Kennedy widow was bringing her assassinated husband home for the last time.

There was that set face, that slim, straight body that moved unsupported, the same solid determination that there would be, in the midst of madness, some dignity.

What the world first saw in Jacqueline Kennedy 4½ years ago, it saw Thursday night in Ethel Kennedy and, indeed, in an entire family.

Ethel Kennedy waited within the huge silver, blue and white Air Force jet that brought her murdered husband to La Guardia Airport until after the casket bearing the body of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy had been placed on a mechanical lift to be lowered to the ground. Then she followed.

When the bright television lights and flood lights hit her, she looked out at the crowds gathered below and smiled momentarily. It was, perhaps, a reflex of years of campaigning beside her husband.

Her poise was reflected in her two eldest sons, Joseph, 15, and Robert Jr., 14, who showed no signs of faltering as they helped lift their father's coffin gently from the aircraft.

There was Joan, wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., arriving at La Guardia more than half an hour before the jet touched down, acting completely composed. And her husband, the only surviving son in a family which once had four sons, the first out of the aircraft front door and immediately in charge of removal of the casket.

Edward would remain with his brother through the night, alone inside an empty, dark St. Patrick's Cathedral.

But when the cathedral opened its doors to the first of thousands expected to come to pass by the coffin, friends and relatives would keep constant vigil there, four at a time in half hour shifts.

There was Eunice, sister of the slain senator, waiting at the airport without tears. Her husband, Sargent Shriver, U.S. ambassador to France, gently circling his arm around Joan's waist as they rode up the lift together—just in case the Kennedy composure failed.

Jean, a sister who rode the jet from Los Angeles, moved quickly and surely from the aircraft behind Ethel. And Jean's husband, Stephen Smith, campaign manager for the dead senator, also was entirely calm.

There was Pat, a sister, anxious to do what she could to help.

And then finally, there was Jacqueline, last to leave the aircraft. The great self-control of November 1963 when her husband, President John F. Kennedy, was slain, did not fail her in June 1968.

Proclaims Turn in Your Gun Week

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has proclaimed "Turn in Your Gun" week, starting July 4.

"I know of no greater way of commemorating Sen. (Robert F.) Kennedy than by this positive act," he said Thursday.

Speaking before a large flag draped with black memorial ribbons, the mayor urged San Franciscans to turn in all hand guns at various police stations, with "no questions asked."

Man Charged With Death of Bob Kennedy

By BILL STALL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan has been arraigned on a charge of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in a hearing held behind an unprecedented wall of security.

Sirhan, 24, calm and composed, sat Friday in the chapel of Los Angeles County men's jail as a deputy district attorney read the murder indictment, returned an hour and two minutes earlier by the county grand jury.

The indictment said the slight, olive-complexioned native of Jordan did "wilfully, unlawfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought murder Robert Francis Kennedy."

The judge ordered Sirhan to return to court June 28 to enter a plea and agreed to a defense request that he be examined by two psychiatrists before that date.

Superior Court Judge Arthur L. Alarcon, using the blonde hardwood chapel altar as a temporary court bench, spelled out for Sirhan his constitutional right to a fair, speedy trial.

Then, Alarcon ordered all police, attorneys, court officials and witnesses to say nothing about the case or release any evidence that might in any way jeopardize Sirhan's right to a fair trial.

Any violation, he warned, will result in "swift action" in the form of a contempt of court citation.

Alarcon himself, the 19 unarmed deputy sheriffs who stood watch during the 40-minute arraignment and others among the approximately 200 persons admitted to the arraignment, most of them newsmen, were searched thoroughly before they were taken past a maze of security checkpoints to the third-floor jail chapel.

A card handed to them read: "No cameras, potential weapons or electronic devices of any description will be permitted in the spectators section of the courtroom." The order came from the judge.

Sirhan was escorted in a wheel chair into the 400 capacity chapel by four sheriff's deputies. His left ankle and left index finger still were bandaged from injuries suffered Wednesday in the scuffle at the Ambassador Hotel after a volley of eight shots felled Kennedy and injured five bystanders. Indictments also were returned Friday charging Sirhan with assault with intent to commit murder.

He said no more than a dozen words during the hearing. Alarcon asked him if his true name was Sirhan Bishara Sirhan.

"Yes sir," he said. "It is Sirhan" not "Seer-han."

He indicated he could not afford to hire his own attorney and would be satisfied with appointment of a public defender, Wilbur Littlefield.

Later, A. L. Wirin, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, suggested the judge ask Sirhan directly if he had any objection to being arraigned in jail, rather than at the Hall of Justice two miles away, the scene of the day-long grand jury hearing.

"No, your honor," he said.

Twins Go to War, One Killed

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Last August, twins Jimmy and Jackie Moore decided both of them would go to Vietnam to eliminate the necessity of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moore of Greenville, deciding which would go.

A military rule provides that two members of the same family do not have to serve in a combat area.

On May 27 Jackie, who hadn't seen his brother for seven months, boarded a plane in Vietnam to begin a 15-day leave.

He ignored 14 wooden boxes on the plane carrying soldiers' home for burial until he saw the serial number 2308118 stamped across one casket.

Then Jackie knew he could ignore death no longer for the serial number was his brother's.
